Juvenile Justice Services Division of the Arizona Supreme Court

For years the juvenile justice system has been seen as a place for our most "at risk" young people –children who have fallen through the family, school and community safety nets and are now at a major crossroads in their lives where further risk may define their future or HOPE can illuminate new paths for success. The leadership within the Juvenile Justice Services Division saw the promise of the latter and in 2013 Kids at Hope was introduced state wide to the Arizona Judiciary and the rest is history. Today, Arizona, through the leadership of the Juvenile Justice Services Division and its 15 county juvenile court and probation systems, continues to embrace and model Kids at Hope, demonstrating that all children and youth are capable of success, No Exceptions!
